B2B Marketing Fundamentals
The balancing act: A B2B marketer’s unique challenge

To help our businesses accelerate even in tough times, we need to deliver leads today. But it takes time to build lasting impact.

In B2B, how (and where) you do business matters. Starting with a strong foundation is key.

By 2022, profitability will replace customer experience as the CMO’s number 1 strategic priority.1

Successful B2B marketers are 2X as likely to think long term.2

B2B brand building should account for 46% of marketing spend, and lead generation 54%.3

Successful marketers operate off a simple playbook. They focus on 3 things:

Reaching buyers with the power to act →

Driving meaningful engagement →

Building trust along the way →

Reaching buyers with the power to act

B2B buying cycles are long, emotion-driven and involve many stakeholders. Make sure you know who your marketing is reaching and how your buyers are reacting to it.

B2B buyers average 17 meaningful interactions when completing a purchase.

(The typical buying group involves six to 10 stakeholders, each of whom have consulted four to five sources of information that they must then deconflict together.)

Navigating the B2B buying cycle can be complex, so reaching the right stakeholder group is key.

And it’s clear that marketing can play a pivotal role in how that stakeholder group responds.

Considerations about whether a purchase can enhance the buyer’s reputation or reduce anxiety play a large role in the B2B buying decision.

95% of decision-makers state that, even before contacting a supplier, feeling a sense of connection to a supplier’s brand is as important as feeling confident about what they do.

Multiple stakeholders influence every sale.

Winning brands drive consensus and catalyze collective action across the buying committee.

“Too many B2B marketers underestimate the importance of branding to their success, focusing instead on a product-based appeal to buyers.”

Reaching everyone on the buying committee is one of the hardest parts of B2B marketing – and one of the most important when you’re selling high-consideration products and services.

You succeed by reaching and building relationships with prospects who wield decision-making authority.

That’s why it’s essential to engage high-quality buyers in a professional context.

Marketers can tap into our powerful demographic data to:

- Precisely target audiences
- Zero in on intent, behavior, engagement, interests and more
- Reach everyone involved in the buying decision
“With these campaigns, we can know exactly who this job title is that’s in front of this ad, and what company they’re at. And it makes our job of finding these people much easier.”

Trey Buchanan
Senior Manager at Metric Theory (ServiceMax’s agency)

Thanks to the quality of their content and precision of their targeting, ServiceMax and Metric Theory have seen strong overall results with their campaign. But the real breakthrough came from the decision to focus their efforts on LinkedIn Groups. The Groups campaign outperformed even Retargeting campaigns, producing an incremental surge in quality leads at a 16% lower cost per lead: 189 leads captured at a CPL lower than benchmark.

Driving meaningful engagement with business-minded buyers

Maximize your investment toward the engagements (and receptive audiences) that count.

Joining your audience’s conversations is a proven way to connect with buyers. Gain mindshare and market share will follow.

Empowered B2B buyers consult many communities – including those on social media – to inform their purchase decision. They find most value in the ones geared toward their business needs and interests.

81% of B2B buyers said they share business-related content with their LinkedIn network. 75% of B2B buyers use social networks to learn about different vendors.

Your brand should be a part of those valuable engagements.

“Modern B2B buyers will expect providers to be present and proactive at every moment of their journeys, in all of their preferred channels and touchpoints.”

How to take part on LinkedIn

82% of B2B marketers realize their greatest success on LinkedIn compared to other social media channels.10

LinkedIn members are purposeful.

They invest time on the platform to be more productive and successful, to learn and grow. That makes them more interested in learning about brands on LinkedIn.

LinkedIn is the most common social network used to research for buying decisions.

Brands on LinkedIn have seen 33% increase in purchase intent resulting from ad exposure on LinkedIn.11

Quality conversations and dialogues thrive in the feed on the trusted, professional LinkedIn platform. In 2019 on LinkedIn:

Advertising in trusted environments that deliver results

Trust is something that’s hard won but easily lost. So is your brand’s identity. Where your ad shows up matters. Context matters.

Brands must carefully choose where to establish their reputation. Doing so could mean the difference between winning and losing their biggest deals.

51% of B2B buyers place a higher emphasis on the trustworthiness of the source of the content they consume\(^\text{12}\)

68% The majority of B2B buyers notice ads from the solution provider they chose during the research process\(^\text{13}\)

That’s why you should align your brand with trusted, recognizable sources. Establish a strong brand reputation by showcasing your value in trusted environments.

Perceptions of enterprise – who you are – drives two thirds of corporate reputation vs. what you sell which accounts for only a third.\(^\text{14}\)

“Many companies focus on chasing down leads with a ‘last-click’ mindset. Fewer invest the effort to earn credibility in the minds of customers and create an environment that stimulates lasting demand.”

The case for trusting LinkedIn

Trust is the foundation of meaningful relationships that convert prospects to customers. When you advertise on LinkedIn, you associate your brand with the most trusted social media platform.

For the third year in a row, LinkedIn has been recognized as the most trusted social platform.

LinkedIn ranks #1 for “least annoying ads,” “confidence in data,” “least deceptive content,” and “feel safe participating.”

“We were able to find a lot of success on LinkedIn because LinkedIn gives us access to a very engaged and relevant audience. When a potential customer sees meaningful, relevant content, they’ll view your company as a knowledge resource and as a partner. And in the future, once they build up that trust, they’ll come to you with their business.”
