Industry: Software Development

Beamery, the leading AI talent platform, uses LinkedIn Ads to generate high-quality B2B leads. To scale efficiently, they integrated Adobe Marketo Engage with their CRM, creating a streamlined lead management system that improves conversion rates and reduces cost per lead (CPL).

Challenge

A mountain of leads in need of management

- LinkedIn's unparalleled targeting capabilities have proven to be an ideal fit for Beamery's B2B marketing efforts. However, they struggled to optimally integrate LinkedIn's lead gen form data with their CRM.
- The lack of structured lead management made it challenging to prioritize and follow through on the high volume of leads LinkedIn was generating for Beamery.
- Tracking and measuring marketing effectiveness was difficult as well, due to unclear lead data. This clouded the process of optimizing campaigns.
- Beamery also sought a solution that would optimize and simplify the lead follow-up process, especially for key marketing moments like their Spark Live event.

Solution

Marketo Engage makes sense of LinkedIn lead data

- Beamery turned to lead management solution Marketo Engage to act as an intermediary between LinkedIn and their CRM. Unlike a direct integration, which might only sync leads from LinkedIn to a CRM, Marketo Engage allows for sophisticated data handling, organizing the data to optimize its usefulness.
- Through integrating LinkedIn Lead Gen Forms with Marketo Engage, Beamery streamlined the lead management process, enabling better data filtering and reporting.
- Marketo Engage provided clear visibility into lead quality and campaign performance, allowing Beamery to refine their marketing strategies and measure ROI more effectively.

“Marketo Engage is the backbone of our marketing campaigns, seamlessly integrating our CRM data with LinkedIn to power impactful audience building, precise retargeting, and comprehensive performance tracking. This integration empowers us to optimize every stage of our marketing strategy, enabling more personalized, data-driven campaigns that resonate with our target audience. By uniting these platforms, we’ve streamlined our lead generation process, elevated engagement, and significantly boosted ROI.”
