Reasons Why Employee Referrals Matter to Small to Mid-sized Businesses
One of the toughest challenges small to mid-sized businesses (SMBs) face is competition for quality talent. Eighty percent of companies say there is a skills shortage, and finding the best candidates is getting harder.

The good news is that when it comes to finding new employees, you have a hidden team of super recruiters just waiting to step in. They’re your employees!

Employee referrals can help you find the right candidates cheaper, faster and better than many traditional methods. In fact, it’s one of the top ways candidates learn about new job opportunities.

If you’re not leveraging this valuable resource, you could be missing out on finding your next high performer. Check out the five reasons why SMBs should be using employee referrals to grow teams:

1. help you hire faster
2. lower your cost per hire
3. deliver high-quality candidates
4. increase employee retention
5. protect corporate culture and build your brand

Get inspired by 6 referral programs from:

- Booking.com
- Google
- InMobi
- Pure
- GoDaddy
- Enterprise Rent-A-Car
Employee referrals HELP YOU HIRE FASTER

Traditional hiring methods such as posting job ads, combing career sites and retaining an outside recruiter can take up to 55 days from start to finish. Employee referral programs, however, can reduce your hire time significantly.

WHY

On average, it takes a company 29 days to hire a candidate who was referred by an employee. If you are in a hurry to fill a vacancy, this might be the best method of hiring.

Referred workers are also more likely to refer future employees, creating a never-ending pipeline of candidates for future hiring needs.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Most hiring methods take</th>
<th>Referred hires only take</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>55 days</td>
<td>29 days</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Employee referrals help you save money you might have spent on advertisements, agency fees or recruiter commissions. In fact, employee referrals produce the highest ROI of any sourcing method.

Even if you award a cash bonus to employees who successfully refer a new employee, the amount you spend will likely be less. For example, if an agency charges a fee of 15% of the new hire’s first-year salary, an employee who earns $100,000 hire would cost your company $15,000 to acquire.

TIP: Offer employees a healthy referral bonus (e.g. $2,000 to $5,000), and enjoy significant savings.

One more cost saver: because referred employees are faster to hire, you will save money on internal labor costs or outsourcing.
The referring employee will want to protect his or her reputations. They’ll be careful to screen and only suggest people who would be high performers because they won’t want to jeopardize their own career in the process. In fact, a study found that A-players, or high performers, were more likely to refer other A-players.

Employee referrals also include those hard-to-find, “passive” job seekers. Ninety percent of LinkedIn members say they’re at least somewhat interested in new opportunities. While some are actively looking, many are simply open to learning about new roles. According to a study by CEB, 69% of potential applicants say they don’t know where they’d go if they left their current job, and the number-one way they discover new opportunities is from someone they know.

WHY

Employees referrals DELIVER HIGH-QUALITY CANDIDATES

Candidates who are referred by employees tend to be higher quality.
Employee referrals help you save money you might have spent on advertisements, agency fees or recruiter commissions. In fact, employee referrals produce the highest ROI of any sourcing method.

Employee referrals INCREASE EMPLOYEE RETENTION

Employees who are referred tend to stay at their jobs longer than traditional hires, reducing the time and resources you’ll need to put into future recruiting. In a study by JobVite, 46% of referred hires stayed for at least one year after they were hired, as compared to 33% of people hired through career sites and 22% hired through job boards. Two years later, 45% of referred hires were still there.

Retention also increases for employees who refer candidates. Research shows they’re more likely to stick around the company longer because they feel a sense of community as well as a level of responsibility to the employee they recruited.

WHY

33% of career site hires stay at least one year.

46% of referred hires stay at least one year.
Employee referrals

PROTECT CORPORATE CULTURE AND BUILD YOUR BRAND

Employee referral programs provide employees with a greater sense of value and engagement by giving them a role in the hiring process.

WHY

Employees who enjoy their job will want to protect the corporate culture by only referring candidates they believe to be a good fit. Most tend to refer people who are similar in work style and ethic to themselves.

Employee referral programs also turn employees into brand advocates. If someone is talking to a friend about a job opening, they are sending the message that your company is a great place to work.
Grab these ideas for

CREATING A SUCCESSFUL EMPLOYEE REFERRAL PROGRAM

The overwhelming majority of recruiters (87%) agree that the number-one way to boost referrals is through better employee engagement, however, just 20% are happy with employee involvement. How does your SMB implement an employee referral program and get your employees on board?

Be inspired by these six powerhouse businesses that leverage employee referrals to find new talent and solve their hiring issues:

Booking.com
Google
InMobi
Pure
GoDaddy
Enterprise Rent-A-Car
WHAT THEY NEEDED
More bilingual employees

WHAT THEY DID
Doubled the referral bonus, and even brought Portuguese food for the office for lunch, with a note requesting Portuguese-speaking referrals!

RESULTS
Portuguese-speaking referrals spiked, and referrals became the #1 method of finding talent, sourcing 41% of US-based customer service reps
WHAT THEY NEEDED

Return to Google’s roots where referrals were the best and largest source of new hires

WHAT THEY DID

“Nudged” employees by asking specific questions, such as “Who’s the best finance person you’ve ever worked for?” or “Do you know a great salesperson in New York?”

RESULTS

33% increase in referred hires
WHAT THEY NEEDED
Good tech talent

WHAT THEY DID
Got rid of cash bonuses, instead offering trips and gifts - like a motorbike that they parked in the headquarters lobby

RESULTS
The number of successful tech referrals increased from 20% to 50%
WHAT THEY NEEDED
Increase successful referrals without high brand recognition

WHAT THEY DID
Asked new hires for referrals within their first 30 days, making it clear that recruiting is part of everyone’s job

RESULTS
40-60% of new hires are from employee referrals
WHAT THEY NEEDED
A top-of-mind employee referral program

WHAT THEY DID
Cut the referral bonus by two-thirds, instead spending money on marketing such as software that broadcasts content and jobs to employees and T-shirts for top referrers

RESULTS
Successful corporate referrals nearly doubled, reaching the company goal of 33%
WHAT THEY NEEDED
To drive referrals from the top down

WHAT THEY DID
Created a friendly competition by posting a leaderboard that shows top-ranking regions by the number of referrals received and hired

RESULTS
30% of all new hires are referrals, with the CEO initiating more referrals than anyone else
EXPLORE LINKEDIN REFERRALS FOR YOUR SMALL TO MID-SIZED BUSINESS (SMB).

 Automatically uncover quality hires by engaging your employees, unlocking their networks, and inspiring everyone to recruit. With LinkedIn Referrals, your employees can easily access and utilize the seamless referral tool that suggests connections for the right open roles.

Get quality referrals and start hiring world-class talent for your SMB.

Contact us
1-855-655-5653

Learn more
bit.ly/LNKDreferrals